CLAIMS NOTICE

I recently went out to coolgardie claims and found a lot of things we should not do. I # 1 take your trash home with you. Do not leave it in a fire pit of on the claim. And do not burry it in the ground. TAKE IT HOME WITH YOU. # 2 we have a lot of holes that are not good. When you can burry a car in your hold it is time to fill it in. Also your holes can't be straight down. They have to have a ramp on them so the desert critters can get out if they get in your hole. If this isn't done the BLM can fine us and take our claims away from us. I don't want that to happen and I don't think you do either. We have spring and summer just around the corner. If you have a problem with bee's around you, take a Downey fabric softner sheet for your dryer and rub it all over your body. It will keep the bee's away and it will also make you smell good. It works great. I keep a supply in my bag that I take out prospecting. Also the snakes are out early because of the warm weather so watch out for them.

Prez says: Thanks for all your support and prayers. The stint is still ok but I seem to be short on oxygen when I do anything stressful. I am on new meds and doing ok slowly. Thanks to our treasurer Sue, Jennifer my fill in secretary, and Judy for all your help and conducting the meeting. I did not want to miss the March meeting but my health comes first. I will be in Las Vegas for the April meeting setting up Valleys booth at the GPAA show at Southpoint Casino. If you can come up to Las Vegas and help at the booth we will be glad to have you. We talk to a lot of people that are interested in gold mining, panning or joining a club. Thanks to our members, we sell a lot of gold and raffle tickets for gold nuggets. We still have many things to do this year if my health holds up. You members make Valley Prospectors the great club it is by volunteering and supporting the programs we do to promote gold mining. On May 8th Digger, Joe and I will be at the Yuciapa gem and mineral club to demonstrate gold panning. We still need a secretary for the club. See you at the May meeting may all your pans have gold.

BLOOD BANK NEWS "MVP"

Well the new job is going great, but I do miss everyone at the club meetings. I hope to see some of you at the Las Vegas Gold Expo. Thanks to all who continue to donate on behalf of Valley Prospectors – "MVP". I got a text that Jim Straight and his caregiver Cecilia recently gave, also, Lisa Howison. Just inspires you to want to join in the fun. Keep those messages coming my way. I can't say thank you unless you let me know who you are. Let's see if we can't beat that number this year. You can check for local donation centers or events at https://www.lstream.org/

The need is constant, the process is simple, and the results are priceless.

Prospecting on the San Bernardino National Forest

The Lure of Prospecting

Anyone who pans for gold hopes to be rewarded by the glitter of colors in the fine material collected in the bottom of the pan. Although the exercise and outdoor activity experienced in prospecting are rewarding, there are few thrills comparable to finding gold. Even an assay report showing an appreciable content of gold in a sample obtained from a lode deposit is exciting. The would-be prospector hoping for financial gain, however, should carefully consider all the pertinent facts before deciding on a prospecting venture.

History and Background of Prospecting

In recent times, only a few prospectors among the many thousands who searched the western part of the United States ever found a valuable deposit. Most of the gold mining districts in the West were located by pioneers, many of whom were experienced gold miners from the southern Appalachian region, but even in colonial times only a small proportion of the gold seekers were successful. Over the past several centuries the country has been thoroughly searched by prospectors. During the depression of the 1930's, prospectors searched the better known gold-producing areas throughout the Nation, especially in the West, and the little-known areas as well. The results of their activities have never been fully documented, but incomplete records indicate that an extremely small percentage of the total number of active prospectors supported themselves by gold mining. Of the few significant discoveries reported, nearly all were made by prospectors of long experience who were familiar with the regions in which they were working.

Many believe that it is possible to make wages or better by panning gold in the streams of the West, particularly in regions where placer mining formerly flourished. However, most placer deposits have been thoroughly reworked at least twice--first by Chinese laborers, who arrived soon after the initial boom periods and recovered gold from the lower grade deposits and tailings left by the first miners, and later by itinerant miners during the 1930's. Geologists and engineers who systematically investigate remote parts of the country find small placer diggings and old prospect pits whose number and wide distribution imply few, if any, recognizable surface indications of metal-bearing deposits were overlooked by the earlier miners and prospectors.

Prospecting History in Big Bear

The Big Bear Back Country Place is known for its colorful mining history, prehistoric habitations and scenic character. From 1860 until the early 1900s, Holcomb Valley was the location of southern California's largest gold rush and the mining towns of Belleville, Clapboard Town and Union Town were located here. Extractions of gold, silver and copper continued here over a longer period of time than anywhere else in California. The last mining operation of any size concluded in 1958. Holcomb Valley is a California Historic District, noted for its abundant historic and prehistoric sites. Other historic mining areas are present in Lone Valley and Rattlesnake Canyon. Rose Mine, which housed a mountain community at the turn of the century is now a National Historical Site.

Placer Deposits

A placer deposit is a concentration of a natural material that has accumulated in unconsolidated sediments of a stream bed, beach, or residual deposit. Gold derived by weathering or other process from lode deposits is likely to accumulate in placer deposits because of its weight and resistance to corrosion. In addition, its characteristically sun-yellow color makes it easily and quickly recognizable even in very small quantities. The gold pan or miner's pan is a shallow sheet-iron vessel with sloping sides and flat bottom used to wash gold-bearing gravel or other material containing heavy minerals. The process of washing material in a pan, referred to as "panning," is the simplest and most commonly used and least expensive method for a prospector to separate gold from the silt, sand, and gravel of the stream deposits. It is a tedious, back-breaking job and only with practice does one become proficient in the operation.

Many placer districts in California have been mined on a large scale as recently as the mid-1950's. Streams draining the rich Mother Lode region--the Feather, Mokelumne, American, Cosumnes, Calaveras, and Yuba Rivers--and the Trinity River in northern California have concentrated considerable quantities of gold in gravels. In addition, placers associated with gravels that are stream remnants from an older erosion cycle occur in the same general area.

In addition to these localities, placer gold occurs along many of the intermittent and ephemeral streams of arid regions in Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, and southern California. In many of these places a large reserve of low-grade placer gold may exist, but the lack of a permanent water supply for conventional placer mining operations requires the use of expensive dry or semidry concentrating methods to recover the gold.

Modern Day Prospecting

Today's prospector must determine where prospecting is permitted and be aware of the regulations under which he is allowed to search for gold and other metals. Permission to enter upon privately owned land must be obtained from the land owner. Determination of land ownership and location and contact with the owner can be a time-consuming chore but one which has to be done before prospecting can begin.

Determination of the location and extent of public lands open to mineral entry for prospecting and mining purposes also is a time consuming but necessary requirement. National parks, for example, are closed to prospecting. Certain lands under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management may be entered for prospecting, but sets of rules and regulations govern entry. The following statement from a pamphlet issued in 1978 by the U.S. Department of the Interior and entitled "Staking a mining claim on Federal Lands" responds to the question "Where May I Prospect?"

There are still areas where you may prospect, and if a discovery of a valuable, locatable mineral is made, you may stake a claim. These areas are mainly in Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. Such areas are mainly unreserved, unappropriated Federal public lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) of the U.S. Department of the Interior and in national forests administered by the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Public land records in the proper BLM State Office will show you which lands are closed to mineral entry under the mining laws. These offices keep up-to-date land status plats that are available to the public for inspection. BLM is publishing a series of surface and mineral ownership maps that depict the general ownership pattern of public lands. These maps may be purchased at most BLM Offices. For a specific tract of land, it is advisable to check the official land records at the proper BLM State Office.

What are the rules for prospecting for gold and staking claims in the National Forest?

Prospecting, mining and claim staking activities are permitted on National Forest system unappropriated land. Claimants have an express and implied right to access their claims when permitted under Forest Service surface use regulations (36 CFR;228). Check with the Bureau of Land Management Office for land status pertaining to mining claims and the Ranger Station for land appropriation status.

An Administrative Pass is a temporary authorization issued at no charge for prospectors and miners who have a statutory right to enter and prospect on public lands sanctioned under the General Mining Act of 1872, as

Other visitors using the forest for recreation are required to purchase an Adventure Pass for a fee, which is required to park their vehicles while recreating in certain recreation sites.
